

The increasing threat generated by the terrorist attacks that in the latest years have hit the European Countries and citizens, and the consequent need to respond with an efficient and effective management of the consequence of such acts, demand the coordination of the interested actors at the European Level.

The sharing of knowledge and the mutual recognition is a fundamental element for a better cooperation and for the coordination of the management activities. The best way to reach the goal of a better understanding among partners is organizing joint activities for training, in which different practices and procedures can be implemented and compared, through the organization of mock scenarios involving relevant actors and requiring an effective coordination and cooperation.

In this framework, the COIM-Best project aims at the general objective of promoting coordination and cooperation among those actors involved in the response to terrorist attacks within the EU.
